EXTREME WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING

Read How Mrs. Goodling got Relief and Strength.

York, Pa.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be all you say it is. I was so sick that I could not stand at my sink to wash dishes and I could not sit without a pillow under me. I had the doctor every few days but since I have taken the Compound I don't have to send for him. I have had three children and could not raise any of them, but since I have taken the Compound I have a bright baby boy. I advise every suffering woman to try it and get relief. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. CATHARINE GOODLING, 138 E. King Street, York, Pa.

When a medicine has been successful in bringing health to so many, no woman has a right to say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." There must be more than a hundred thousand women in this country who, like Mrs. Goodling, have proven what wonders Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can do for weak and ailing women. Try it and see for yourself.

If there are any complications you don't understand, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

Aid Union enjoyed the order's hospitalities.

Cards and dancing were also indulged in during the evening.

Mrs. A. A. Miller had charge of the affair. She was assisted by Mrs. L. G. Allan, Mrs. Eugenia Gillingham, Mrs. White and Mrs. Jennie Wright.

The following programme was given: Piano Solo..... Miss Frances Cameron Vocal Solo..... Miss Edna Ackerman Reading..... Miss Eileen Gibson Vocal Solo..... Miss Muriel Simpson Readings, Mrs. Hattie Cameron, Miss Gertrude Anderson and Miss Grace Babcock.

Fancy Dance, the Misses Anabel Golden and Alice McCallan.

Tonight the Salem Floral society will give an entertainment in the Commercial club at 8 o'clock. A programme has been arranged and the public is cordially invited.

Lieutenant Governor of California Dead

Everyone Liked Him.

The capitol was enveloped in gloom today as the result of the lieutenant governor's death. Eschleman was well liked by everyone who knew him and even the bitter political fight of the last few years did not make him an enemy, political or otherwise of any man.

His fight against the railroads has been pronounced one of the most brilliant campaigns in the history of California. He was deeply concerned in the regulation of public utilities and his death was perhaps hastened by a recent eastern trip in which he participated in a public utilities controversy.

His political career was just blossoming when he was stricken down by the hand of death. He was considered by many the logical successor to Governor Johnson and was mentioned as a possible candidate for United States senator.

Mr. Eschleman attended a meeting of the board of prison directors in San Francisco Friday. At the meeting he showed no signs of illness and the prison directors and wardens were greatly shocked upon learning of his death.

The lieutenant governor returned last week from Washington, D. C., where he represented oil land owners who were fighting the Taft withdrawal order. He also testified in favor of Louis D. Brandeis for supreme court justice while in the east and made several addresses on public utility matters.

One of his first acts upon returning to California was to attend the meeting of the advisory board of pardons of which he is an ex-officio member. At this meeting, held in San Francisco Friday, the board considered among other cases those of Charles Oxman and Glenn Witt, young men who are sentenced to be hanged Friday.

Brooks today. He will go to Des Moines, Iowa, soon to look after business interests there for several weeks.

A. L. Clearwater and wife returned to Salem yesterday after a visit with their cousins, Mr. and Mrs. H. J. Reynolds, in Eugene.—Eugene Guard.

SEIZED AMERICAN MAILS

New York, Feb. 28.—Palmouth, England, reports today said authorities had seized mail from the liner Nieuw Amsterdam, supposedly containing secret German orders to merchant vessels to attack submarines. The vessel is due here Saturday.

Germany Protests

Berlin, by wireless to Sayville, L. I., Feb. 28.—Germany has protested to Portugal against the recent Portuguese seizure of interned German liners, it was announced today.

THAT TIRED FEELING

Relieved by Hood's Sarsaparilla, Which Renovates the Blood.

That tired feeling that comes to you in the spring, year after year, is a sign that your blood lacks vitality, just as a pimple, boils and other eruptions are signs that it is impure; and it is also a sign that your system is in a low or run-down condition inviting disease. It is a warning which it is wise to heed.

Ask your druggist for Hood's Sarsaparilla. This old standard tried and true blood medicine relieves that tired feeling. It cleanses the blood, gives new life, new courage, strength and cheerfulness. "It makes the rich red blood that will make you feel, look, eat and sleep better."

Be sure to get Hood's, because it is the best. There is no other compound of roots, bark and herbs like it—no real substitute for it—no "just-as-good" medicine.

OREGON AUTHORS AND BOOKS THEY WROTE

Oregon is attracting the attention of the entire country not only from its advanced political ideas, and its modern methods of teaching, but also from the number of books that have been written by Oregonians within the last few years.

The writings of Oregon authors, especially in political science, are in demand in the east as well as at home. Oregon is regarded as a state in which many of the more radical ideas in legislation are being tried out. Sam Simpson and Homer Davenport have world-wide fame, but there are others.

Living in Oregon are many authors whose works are known probably better outside of the state than in it. Oregon educators are contributing to national educational magazines and professors in the colleges of the state are having their writings accepted by the leading publishing houses of New York and Chicago.

Living in Salem are several authors whose writings are well known not only on the Pacific coast, but have had general circulation throughout the country.

Col. E. Hofer's "Jack Norton," published a few years ago attracted general attention, as well as his poems, and shorter work, "Jesus and the Unemployed."

George Palmer Putnam, who as the governor's secretary now claims Salem as his home is the author of two books, "The Oregon Country" and "The Southland of North America."

J. H. Cradlebaugh, of Salem, is best known by his collections of poems, "Nevada Klashie Ilshier" and "Songs of the Good Country."

Another Salem poet who has come before the public within the last year is Ernest Everhart Baker, who published last December a book of poems, entitled "The Heart of the Last Frontier."

Judge J. C. Moreland has written several pamphlets on the early days of Oregon, his best known being on "Oregon Governors."

John Minto, late warden of the state penitentiary, was a writer of verse and published in 1909 a book with the title "Rhymes on Life in Oregon."

Mrs. Mania Falkerson, living in Salem Heights, is writing a series of articles for an eastern educational paper and for many years has contributed to the eastern magazines on educational subjects.

Eugene has several writers who have been attracting national attention. Allen H. Eaton, who has been in the state house of representatives for several years, has written a book, "The Oregon System," that has been called for especially in the east.

Dr. J. D. Barnett, of the University of Oregon, has recently published a new work entitled, "The Operation of the Initiative, Referendum and Recall in Oregon." The book has just been issued by McMillan.

Eugene is also the home of another writer, Prof. Joseph Schaefer, whose book, "History of the Pacific Northwest," is regarded as one of the best ever written on this subject.

Oregon City is the home of several living authors, the one best known perhaps being Mrs. E. E. Dye, whose works on the early days of Oregon are popular. Her three best known are "McLaughlin and Old Oregon," her most popular work; "The Conquest," a story of Lee and Clark, and "McDonald of Oregon."

Gilbert L. Hedges, of Oregon City, a member of one of Oregon's public spirited families, has recently published a book which is in demand in the east among those interested in political science. It is entitled, "Where the People Rule," and was published in 1914.

Corvallis is the home of Prof. J. B. Horner, who has written extensively on the history of Oregon. His best known work is a compilation of Oregon literature, entitled "Oregon Literature." Within the last few years many technical treatises have been written by the professors of the O. A. C. and have been published in educational magazines.

Albany is the home of Prof. E. A. Franklin, of Albany college, who has written a book on "Legislative History of Naturalization in the United States." This book was published by the University of Chicago and used by that institution as one of its text books. Mrs. Franklin, who at present is librarian of the Albany public library, is a contributor to magazines.

Among Oregon's living authors may be mentioned Mrs. Ada Milligan, of Prineville. She has written many poems on Indian legends, the best known being, "The Heart of Oregon."

Mrs. Agnes Ruth Seingstacker, of Marshfield, has contributed to magazines. Her writings are mostly on the early Indian legends and her best known work is "Legends of the Coos," published in 1909.

Ashland boasts of its historical writer as well as poet. Mrs. Caroline Minker is best known by her book of poems, "Day Dreams," and C. B. Watson, of Ashland, by his book published in 1909, entitled, "Prehistoric Siskiyou and the Caves of Josephine County."

Newberg claims a political writer in Prof. W. C. Woodard, who wrote while living in that city, "Rise of Political Parties in Oregon." He is now a professor in Earlham college, Richmond, Indiana.

A small book was published in Dallas in 1908 and is now out of print, entitled, "Uncle Sam's Own Story," and was written by Glen Holman.

Portland has many living authors, whose fame reaches far beyond the state.

The work of W. T. Foster, president of Reed college are known in every educational center. He is perhaps best known by the book that brought him before the educators of the country, "Argumentation and Debating." Two other books that have been circulated more than others are, "The Social Emergency," his latest, and "The Essentials of Exposition and Argument."

Miss Josephine Hammond, of Reed college, is best known by her book, "Everywoman's Road: A Morality of Women," published in 1913. Col. C. E. S. Wood, who spoke recently at the state library has been writing books for many years, his earliest works now being out of print. A book that has been much prized in his latest, published in 1915, entitled, "The Poet in the Desert."

Dr. C. H. Chapman, for many years editorial writer on the Oregonian, but now with the Portland Journal, has written many pamphlets, Frederick Holman, a prominent member of the Oregon Historical society, has written extensively on Oregon history, his best known work being, "History of Dr. John McLaughlin."

Prof. W. L. Finley, for many years associated with the game warden in the department wrote on "American Birds," and has lately issued a book entitled, "Little Bird Blue."

Former Governor T. T. Geer is an interesting writer for those who enjoy history, in his "Fifty Years in Oregon."

Professor John Fleming Wilson, living in Portland, has written several books for boys, in a narrative form. "The Land Claimers," is one of his best.

Professor Lewis Alderman, superintendent of the Portland school, has written a book entitled "Home Credit." It was published in 1915.

"The Captivity of the Outman Girls" was written by R. B. Straiton and published in Salem in 1909.

Several of the books published by Oregon authors are out of print and a few volumes are considered so precious by the state librarian that they are kept at all times in the library safe.

In order that complete records of Oregon writers may be kept in the state library, the librarian would be glad to receive copies of the earlier prints and especially those that have been out of print for several years.

Arrangements are now being made to compile a complete list of Oregon writers and Miss Mary Marvin would be glad to receive lists of writers who live or have lived in this state and books that were written by them.

A collection is being made of everything that has been written by an Oregonian and also of everything that has been written about Oregon.

EXPLOSION KILLS TWENTY

St. Louis, Mo., Feb. 28.—Twenty persons are reported to have been killed in an explosion of a sewer excavation in the extreme western part of the city this afternoon.

Thirty others were reported injured.

The U. S. Marine recruiting station in Salem will close Saturday evening and the young men ambitious to enter this branch of the service, will be given this week to enlist from Salem. After this week, Portland will be the nearest recruiting station. Sergeant W. B. Schuman, who has been in charge here, has been assigned to Portland.

IMPROVEMENTS FOR FAIR GROUNDS TO BE DISCUSSED BY BOARD

Secretary A. H. Lea, of the state fair board, proposes to suggest a number of permanent improvements to the directors at their next meeting which is scheduled for March 9. One of Mr. Lea's suggestions will be to utilize a natural depression near the new pavilion to make an artificial lake which will serve not only as a drain for the grounds but will also provide a place to exhibit samples of Oregon's fish and the dirt taken out can be used to grade up other low places on the grounds.

Mr. Lea also proposes to lay hard surface pavements between all of the buildings. In consideration of the fact that the fair grounds race track is pronounced by all horsemen to be the best in the west for a winter track it is proposed to lay hard surface paving from the stables to the track to keep out of the mud in the winter time.

The fire protection facilities for the coming year will probably be extended by the addition of another tank and some more systems if it is possible to make the extensions under the present appropriation.

The premium list is now completed and will be submitted for the approval of the board at the meeting. The arrangements for the coming fair are rapidly taking shape with the exception of the free attractions which present a large problem. The race program has been completed by the committee and in addition it is proposed to pull off one novelty race each day.

Adjutant General George A. White informed Captain Gehlbach, of Co. M, today that the entire general staff would be present at the grand military ball, which is to be given by the Christians as a compliment to Co. M at the armory, March 3. Governor Withycombe, commander-in-chief of the state militia, will also be present at the ball. The officers will appear in full dress uniform.

The annual election of the officers of the Elk lodge will take place Thursday evening. Already interest in the election is increasing and the contest for two of the offices promises at least to be rather exciting. Two candidates are already mentioned for exalted ruler and also two are in the field for the position of secretary, now held by Eugene W. Slater. The other officers will also be contested, but the greatest interest is in the election of exalted ruler and secretary.

An address will be made Tuesday evening at the Salvation Army headquarters on Court street by the Rev. J. C. Spencer, of the Leslie M. E. church, to which the public is invited.

The Elks are making arrangements to give their next dance on the evening of St. Patrick's day, March 17, which happens to fall on Friday evening this year.

NATURE as a DESIGNER

NATURE never overdoes itself—yet it produces more beautiful effects than science can ever hope to approach. There is perfect balance in its work—there is neither too much nor too little in any of its pictures. And so it goes in clothes making; garments must be thoroughly balanced in style, fabric and workmanship in order to look well and be real values. We feature
